

In Vol. X, No. 1, I published a note about J. H. Bunnell & Co. and its founder, a telegraph operator during the Civil War. Claude Bunnell identified him as Jesse H. Bunnell CB330720, born in 1843 in Massillon, J- and Mary Bunnell.

On 5 April I received a telephone call from Dr. Joseph Jacobs of Fort Salonga, NY, who offered to provide additional information about Jesse H. Bunnell and his company. Dr. Jacobs was at one time an employee of J. H. Bunnell & Co. and now acts as a consultant. He followed up his offer by sending me a package of materials about the man and the company, extracts from which I will share with you now.

First is the obituary of Jesse H. Bunnell which appeared in ELECTRICAL WORLD on 18 February 1899:

MR. JESSE H. BUNNELL, head of the firm of J. H. Bunnell & Co., electrical supply dealers, New York City, died at the Hotel St. George, in Brooklyn, on the evening of February 8, from weakness following an attack of the grip. Mr. Bunnell was born in Ohio in 1843, and became a telegraph operator in early life. He was engaged in the military telegraph service during the Civil War, and was an active participant in some of the most stirring events of those memorable times. He was attached to the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the Cumberland, serving at the headquarters of Generals McClellan, Burn-side, Rosecrans, Thomas and Sherman as their personal telegrapher. At the battle of Antietam he established an office on the field, and sent and received messages under fire. After the war he returned to New York, and in 1872 he became a partner in the firm of Partrick, Bunnell & Co., of Philadelphia, manufacturers of telegraph and electrical supplies. From 1875 to 1878 he was connected with the firm of L. G. Tillotson & Co., of New York. In the latter year he started the business bearing his name, with which he was continuously identified until the time of his death. The remains of the deceased were buried in Greenwood Cemetery. The pall bearers represented the commercial and railroad telegraphers. United States Military Telegraph Corps, the electrical press and the electrical trades. They were: Mr. A. B. Chandler, president of the Postal Telegraph Company; Mr. F. W. Jones, electrical engineer of the same company; Mr. Charles A. Tinker and James Merrihew, both general superintendents of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Colonel James Gilmore and W. J. Dealy, of the U. S. Military Telegraph Corps; Mr. Robert Stewart, superintendent of telegraphs of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; C. W. Price, editor of the "Electrical Review," and Mr. Charles McLaughlin, surviving member of the firm of J. H. Bunnell & Co. The greater part of these were also members of the Old Time Telegraphers' Association. Mr. Bunnell leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters.

For the 1994 AWA conference in Rochester, NY, Dr. Jacobs prepared and presented a talk entitled J, H, BUNNELL & CO. • PAST, PRESENT, FUTURE. He generously sent me a copy of the talk, from which I have extracted the following information regarding the life of Jesse Bunnell:

Jesse was born in Massillon, OH, in 1843. By age 11 he was delivering telegraph messages, and at 13 he was a full-fledged operator serving at offices in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia from 1859 to 1861. At age 17 he set a record of 32 words per minute, as an average, when for a steady two hours he forwarded President Buchanan's last message to Congress.

After the attack on Fort Sumter in April 1861, Jesse, not yet 18 joined the Union Military Telegraph Service (UMTS) which had been recently organized by Andrew Carnegie, who was himself an operator at age 15. At the war's start operators (ops) were the army's cinderellas. They were (and remained) civilians. They were given very little support and $60 a month, less that that of a quartermaster clerk. They were often under fire, as their main duty was to relay troop movement observations and orders, in part replacing military couriers.

In December 1862 Jesse was one of 50 ops who signed a petition to USMT HQ for an increase in pay and support. As their importance was recognized they got merit raises, more regular transport and supplies.

Moving with the army, the op would cut his wire, keeping a few yards with his instrument to reattach to the line at the next stop. During battle lulls ops were kept busy receiving and relaying casualty information for the army and concerned relatives. Working long hours ops would often fall asleep at their instruments, yet always awaken when the sounder clicked their call signs.

Being young, ops were not averse to using their skills and wires for practical jokes. Early in the war, Jesse, "a great wit and very young" was fired when he pulled a hoax on Wheeling, WV, newspapers about a great Union naval loss of the "Rip Raps". Because of his great skills Jesse was soon rehired elsewhere at higher wages.

At first Jesse was assigned to the threatened Washington, DC, area in May 1861, as telegraph service was needed to connect the surrounding encampments and forts with the War Department and the president. At the end of June 1861 he was sent to Annapolis as part of a relay with the Capitol, but during that time operators were "moved from place to place as the occasion required." Jesse Bunnell's tenure on the relay might have allowed him to serve Lincoln, as his Company maintains. Lincoln did use the War Department's telegraph office as a refuge of relative peace and quiet. At a desk unofficially reserved for him, Lincoln wrote part of his Emancipation Proclamation and his Second Inaugural Address.

From about June 1862 to August 1864 Bunnell served with the Army of the Potomac as Gen. McClellan's personal telegrapher (sign MC) and with Sherman's Army of the Cumberland through the bloody battles in Tennessee and on to Atlanta. Exposure and starvation in the winter of 1864 weakened Jesse severely, forcing him to resign on 16 August 1864, when the UMTS lost one of its "ablest and bravest ops". Jesse's return to non-army work from 1864 to 1872 led him to Philadelphia and a partnership with James Partrick, a successor to Chester, Partrick & Co. Later he worked for L.G. Tillotson & Co. from 1875 to 1878.

In 1878 Jesse created J. H. Bunnell & Co. In 1879 he took Charles McLaughlin as a partner in charge of sales and administration while Jesse concentrated on manufacturing and innovation. Bunnell received a patent on 15 February 1881 for his steel lever key. Stamped from one piece of steel with minor machining, this was Bunnell's answer to the loosening of the steel trunnion inserted in the brass lever. It was so successful that the steel lever continues to this day in code keys.

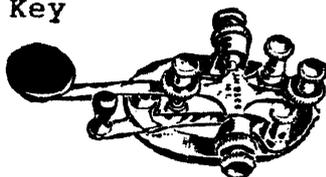

In 1888 Bunnell introduced his doublespeed (sideswiper) key to help telegraphers avoid a "glass arm" (now known as carpal tunnel syndrome). Bunnell was also heavily into other electricals. Dr. Jacobs sent me a copy of an article from THE ELECTRICAL ENGINEER of 31 March 1898 describing Jesse Bunnell's patent for the Bunnell "Wave Motor", a device for converting the motion of oceanic waves to electrical energy.

In 1899 Jesse caught a severe cold which worsened. He died of heart failure on 9 February 1899 at the age of 56. He was buried in Brooklyn's Greenwood Cemetery. His partner Charles McLaughlin took over the company. In the 1920's J. J. Ghegan became president and introduced many electrical innovations. Ghegan was succeeded by J. G. Dougherty, followed by his wife who sold the business in the early 1960's to Inso Electronic Products, C. J. Meislich, president. In 1989 J. H. Bunnell & Co. was acquired as a division of MNJ Industrials, M. B. Jacobs, president.

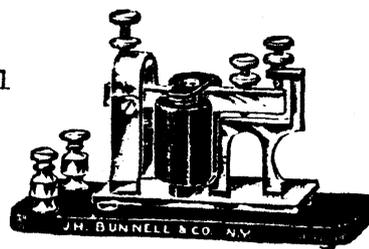

The company, started in Manhattan, moved to several locations in that borough. In the 1930's it moved its operations to a number of locations in Brooklyn, then to Long Island where it is now at Kings Park.

In the 1890's J. H. Bunnell introduced its fully functional miniature versions of its key, sounder and KOB (key on base), selling them as is or as tie pins or with bales for use as watch fobs. They were sold to ardent telegraphers and presented as special awards. Andrew Carnegie, Jesse's Civil War boss, received one at a 1908 Telegraphic dinner. RCA's David Sarnoff and other radio luminaries were also recipients, as was President Eisenhower in 1954. As a collectible today they are extremely rare and desirable. In 1994 J. H. Bunnell & Co. issued a special limited Centennial Edition of their miniatures for collectors,

KBA elects Terry Bunnell

This article was submitted by John Paul Grady, Spring, TX. From the Hart County News-Herald, Munford" ville-Horse Cave, KY, on Tuesday, 28 November 1995.

Terry L. Bunnell

Terry L. Bunnell, Retail Banking Manager at Trans Financial Sank, Glasgow, has recently been elected to a three year term as a member of the Board of Directors for the Young Bankers Division (YBD) of Kentucky Bankers Association (KBA). In this position, Bunnell will represent bankers in a 12-county region of South Central Kentucky.

The Young Bankers Division is a statewide organization of bankers committed to the identification and development of future banking industry leaders. It provides members will career building and leadership development opportunities. The YBD conducts educational programs for its members to keep them abreast of the changing needs of today's bankers. YBD is active in Kentucky Special Olympic Summer Games, state legislative activities, and KBA's school classroom Personal Economics Program.

Bunnell serves in several local community organizations including: President of the Glasgow-Barren County Chamber of Commerce, Treasurer of the Barren County Family YMCA. Treasurer of the Glasgow Lions Club, and Vice President of the Post B Travelers Protective Association. He is also a deacon at the Columbia Avenue Church of Christ and a banking instructor at the Glasgow Campus of Western Kentucky University.

Terry Lewis Bunnell CB028112 is descended from Peter Bunnell (who was born in Virginia in 1784 and moved to Kentucky) through Samuel Washington, William Wallace, David Wallace and Paul Lewis to Terry Lewis Bunnell. Peter Bunnell's ancestry has not been discovered. See page 36.

NAMES ON THE LAND

In early 1995 Clement and Alyne Bonnell, Milford, NJ, made an extended trip to Alaska. Their first objective was the Iditarod dog sled race. In addition they visited other points of interest in the state. Clem is always alert for Bonnell and Bunnell references, and he found several in Alaska.

Here are photographs of Bunnell Streets which Clem took in three Alaskan cities. The street in Fairbanks was obviously named after Charles E. Bunnell CB340113, the first president of the University of Alaska in Fairbanks. The street in Anchorage may have been named for him also, considering his long-time prominence in Alaska as a Federal Judge and college president.

Bunnell Street in Homer, however, appears to have been named after Edward Lloyd Bunnell CB340452, 1888-1966, and his second wife Maybell A.____, whose first husband was Arthur W. Berry. They owned and operated a store at 106 West Bunnell Street. The building is known today as the Inlet Trading Post and now houses, among other things, the Bunnell Street Gallery.

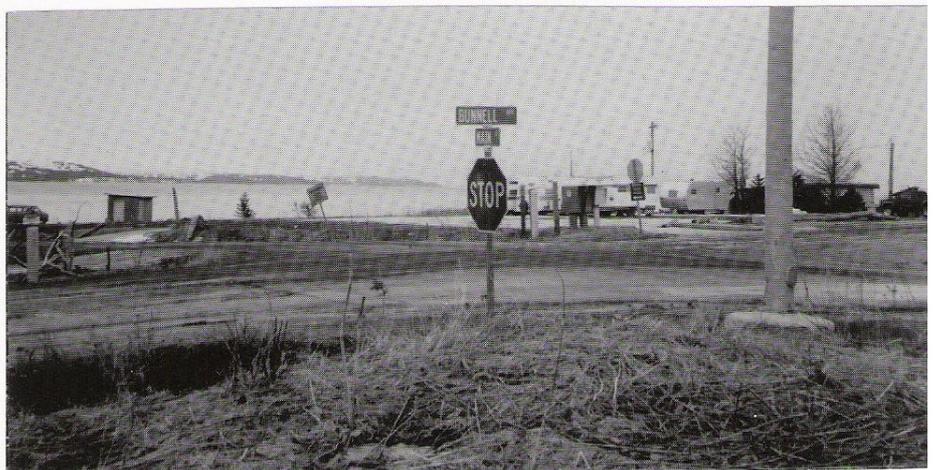

Edward Lloyd Bunnell's descent is as follows: William, Nathaniel, Nathaniel, James, Stephen, Nathaniel, Isaac, Edward C. and Edward Lloyd.

Roots go to Virginia

Q. - I have traced my ancestry back to Peter BUNNELL .. BUNNEL .. BUNEL ...BONNELL ...BONNEL ...BONEL ...BONNEUIL ...BONNERAL ...BONNILL. who was b. 15 June 1782 (VA), or 15 Jan 1784 (VA or OH) and died 18 Jan 1868 (Hart County, KY). He mar. (2) Susanna ERWIN, 19 June 1810 in Green County, KY (b. 5 Oct 1793 or 15 Oct 1794, Augusta County, Va; d. 8 June 1849 or 8 June 1851, Hart County, KY) and (2) Harriet (HARLOW) PERRY, in 1852 or 1853, Hart County, KY (b. ? 1818 Barren County, KY, d ?); dau. of William and Susanna (CURRY) ERWIN, mar. 1785 Augusta County, VA.

I cannot find Peter BUNNELL's parents or siblings, arrival in America, etc., including BUNNELLS in the Revolutionary War. Some say the surname was from the English town of Bonehill, Staffordshire, England; other say derived from the village of Bonneuil-sur-Marne in France. I don't know how to get information in from England, France, Sweden or Germany. R.B. Kansas City, MO.

A.—A new book that may guide you to more U.S. information sources on these early Virginia families is Virginia Genealogy Sources & Resources by Carol McGinnis (Baltimore MD: Genealogical Publishing Co. 1993). In using the many citations you may be able to better pinpoint from where the BUNNELLS came. Introductory chapters for all of Virginia and include church records, some of which contain "information about individuals who may seldom, if at all, be mentioned in court records of the period" (depending on the denomination). About the Revolutionary War (1775-83), McGinnis says about 27,000 Virginians were members of the Continental Army, and over 4,000 did militia service." Records are at the state and national levels "in the forms of service, pension and bounty land records. There are also Public Service Claims (Patriotic Service Records) for nonmilitary...service." Three major indexes are cited, described and located for the researcher. These items hardly touch the total content of this book. In the county records section there are specific sources for Augusta County, which you may not have seen. A large area of Virginia was Augusta County, in this time period.

I subscribe to AntiqueWeek, a weekly publication of articles about antiques and collectibles, news about upcoming auctions and shows, and other items of interest to collectors. An extensive section of classified ads from booksellers is of special interest to me.

Also, in each issue is a three or four page section on genealogy. Along with feature articles and current news and a monthly query section, each week the column Genealogy Sources provides guidance for the research of people who have encountered specific problems.

R.B., of Kansas City, MO, wrote in for help in searching for his or her ancestor Peter Bunnell, who married Susannah Erwin in Green co, KY. AntiqueWeek has graciously granted me permission to print R.B.'s question and the response. A number of my subscribers are anxious to discover the ancestry of Peter and the other Bunnells and Bonnells who came to Kentucky from Virginia about 1800. Perhaps these suggestions may offer a source that you haven't explored before,

See Newsletter, Vol. VI, No. 2, page 20.

I don't know the identity of R.B. of Kansas City, MO. Have any of you been in touch with this person.

Also try to see the Annals of Augusta County by Joseph A. Waddell (1886 with later editions, reprinted at Harrisonburg, 1979) in which there is a supplement section from 1726 to 1871. This and other pertinent Augusta records may be listed in the LDS Locality Catalog under Virginia/Augusta County, if you can work through a Family History Center in your area. Augusta land, probate and court records begin in 1745. Courthouse staff will respond to simple written inquiries (with SASE) and will copy materials for a fee. Perhaps there is a BUNNELL land or court record that would refer to a place of origin. If these records are indexed, the search would not seem too difficult. You may also research in person at this Virginia courthouse from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays (no restrictions), and staff can refer you to the (a) county genealogist.

Also check out what is available on Virginia at the National Archives-Central Plains Region (branch, at 2312 E. Bannister Road in your city. Staff would be able to help you with ordering on loan certain materials from Washington if you need to go that route.

In Kentucky (an area to which many Augusta County residents are said to have migrated), the Hart County Historical Society, P.O. Box 606, Munfordville, KY 42765 publishes Hart County Historical Quarterly which deals largely with county history, the Civil War period and family genealogical records. Perhaps they have a surname reference card file that they would copy for you if any BUNNELLS include your line. Then, you could follow up on any citations that sound promising for your search. (SASE with inquiry and offer to pay for copies of pertinent information.)

For England, again, at a Family History Center, see England/Staffordshire/Borough Records and Church of England for possible references to this family name as a location. If there is such, you can order what microfilm they have relating to that place to see if you can fit the information to your family. (See Genealogical Resources in English Repositories by Joy Wade Moulton.)

And, family associations include Bunnell Foundation. P.O. Box 16434, Portland, OR 97216. and The Bunnell/Bonnell Newsletter. P.O. Box 62, Laceyville, PA 18623. - ek
